Choosing a Care Home

We realise that the decision to choose a care home can often be one of the most difficult decisions that a family can make together. This guide is to give you a few useful suggestions about what to look out for when visiting care homes to help you decide which care home is the right one for you.

Key considerations

- 1) Does the home provide the level of care you need, or that you might require in the future?
- 2) Take a look at the most recent report on the care home from the CQC (Care Quality Commission), which is the governing body in England that regulates and inspects care homes.
- 3) Does the care home have any current vacancies? If it does not, ask how long the waiting list is so that you are able to decide if you can wait, or if you need to consider somewhere else that you can move into sooner.
